Multi-Story Unit Next for Oxnard?

Visions of Oxnard may be gratified by a new luxury motel or [illegible] apartment buildings, it was learned today.

Vincent Ulster has asked the city to annex a 11-acre site along Oxnard Boulevard south of Carriage Square. Ulster is one of the owners of the property, called Ulster Farms.

A map of the site has been forwarded to the County Boundary Commission for approval.

Ulster said today he would like to incorporate the site into an attractive development at the northern approach to the city. He said tentative proposals may include a complex of apartment or motel buildings and possibly a shopping center.

But he emphasized that he had not yet decided how best to utilize the land and has asked architects to come up with some design suggestions.

WEEKLY STOCKS

Market Shows Sizeable Recover[illegible]

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Stock Market managed a sizable recovery after a month-long decline this week, interrupting a relaxation of tension between President Kennedy and the nation's steel companies.

The ground gained in week-government relations after last week's battle over prices, plus mostly favorable business statistics and a batch of favorable first quarter earnings reports from many industries, contributed heavily to the holiday week recovery.

Elimination of some pressure by the passing of the tax selling deadline and a climb in the short interest position on the market to a four month high were also helpful influences.

The market dipped moderately on Monday after the steel companies all rescinded their $6 a ton price increases.

But when Roger Blough, chairman of U. S. Steel, and the President had an apparently cordial meeting and the latter said there was no resentment "vindictiveness" since the "mistake" was corrected, the market staged a [illegible] recovery until it closed Thursday for the long Easter weekend.

However, there was some lasting alarm. Wall Street [illegible] have injected long range [illegible] demand by raising [illegible] that future markets may have to contend with a less favorable and more closely supervised business environment.

In utilities, many [illegible] confirmed fears by his [illegible] that the struggle, when viewed by history, might have marked the end of a 30-year [illegible] of Friday [illegible]
