Dr. Rubin read from the sheet. Mr. Grewe indicated that beginning in the mid to late 1960s he personally used joint compound while remodeling homes as a side job.

He recalled exposure to asbestos-containing dust when he used, mixed, and sanded joint compound. He recalled asbestos-free joint compounds by the late 1970s.

Mr. Grewe also stated that for about a year in the mid 1950s he performed sheet metal work installing new forced hot air furnaces in residences.

He recalled that strips of asbestos cloth approximately six inches by one-quarter inch in various lengths were incorporated into the sheet metal pipe work he installed on top of the furnaces. He neither handled nor cut the asbestos cloth.

So what we know from the plaintiffs' own expert, the testimony provided by Dr. Rubin, is that the plaintiffs forwarded him a summary sheet listing other asbestos exposures.

Dr. Rubin didn't talk about that during his
