SYMPOSIUM
ON CERTAIN CHLORINATED HYDROCARBONS

HARVARD SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH, BOSTON, MASS.
JUNE 30, 1937

Program

1. The problem of possible systemic effects from certain chlorinated hydrocarbons.

CECIL K. DRINKER, MADELEINE FIELD WARREN AND GRANVILLE A. BENNETT

Department of Physiology, Harvard School of Public Health and Department of Pathology, Harvard Medical School, Boston, Mass.

2. Demonstration of laboratory methods for ventilating operations employing chlorinated hydrocarbons. A discusssion of permissible concentrations of such compounds in the air.

C. P. YAGLOU, M.M.E.

Assistant Professor of Industrial Hygiene, Harvard School of Public Health

AND

PHILIP DRINKER, Ch.E.

Professor of Industrial Hygiene, Harvard School of Public Health

3. A description of the lesions found in the liver of animals subjected to various chorinated hydrocarbons.

GRANVILLE A. BENNETT, M.D.

Associate in Pathology, Harvard Medical School

(The second and third papers will appear elsewhere. Copies of them will be sent to all who attended the symposium.)

DSW 346087

STLCOPCB4084406