The Pick Up Paper

Paint Arithmetic

THERE is a certain type of man who literally figures everything out. You know the fellow we mean. The figure wizard. He thinks with his pencil.

Jones is of that type. A short while back he dropped into a neighborhood paint store to talk about paint for his house. Before very long he had his pencil out and was making some calculations.

Suddenly he stopped short and exclaimed: "Send me the paint which will last the longest. I find that the price doesn't cut any figure!"

The paint-store man had learned that fact many years ago but in the hope of seeing it expressed a new way in figures he drew Jones out by asking: "How do you figure that out?"
