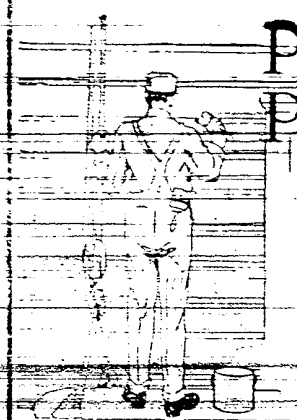
Pacific Coast Paint For Pacific Coast Climate



You paint your house to protect it from the weather, and the extent of that PROTECTION depends largely upon the brand of paint you use.

Almost any paint will look well for a while, but you want a paint that will continue to look good by resisting the attacks of the weather.

The climate of the Pacific Coast is quite different from that of the eastern states. So to get a paint that will last longest you must have one that is specially prepared for this climate.

Bass-Hueter Paint is manufactured on the Pacific Coast especially for the climate of the Pacific Coast.

It required many years of study, laboratory testing and experimenting to produce the Bass-Hueter formula.

And the test of time through many years has proven that Bass-Hueter Paint gives better results on this coast than any other paint on the market.

It is not only the question of painting your house that you should consider; the most important question is RE-PAINTING.

To avoid the expense of re-painting for many years see that your painter uses Bass-Hueter Paint—the paint that is manufactured on the Pacific Coast for the climate of the Pacific Coast.

Remember that you are the one that pays the bill and you should have the say as to what paint should be used.

We carry Bass-Hueter Paints in all the colors and tints recommended by their manufacturers that the paints will give absolute satisfaction.
