As you know, Monsanto will completely withdraw as a supplier of PCB dielectrics October 31, 1977. After this date there will still be PCB dielectrics literature on hand at various company locations. The decision has been made after consultation with advertising and legal, that we will not send out literature after October 31. This is primarily because environmental regulations are changing in the United States, thus making portions of our literature obsolete. If we continue to send out literature there is the potential of providing misleading or inaccurate information.

Reference copies of the various literature will be retained for the archives in St. Louis.

The following action is requested of you:

(a) Insure that no PCB dielectrics literature is sent to customers/users after October 31, 1977.

(b) Instruct your personnel to destroy PCB dielectrics literature at the various office locations in your area after October 31.

(c) Confirm to J. A. Alley/Dave Wood when (b) is accomplished.

Thank you for your cooperation.
