I have just received your note concerning the recently published Technical Service Report on work we did for Pirelli to determine concentrations of Aroclor 1242 in the Atmosphere. This report refers to work which was carried out as part of our Development Programme with Pirelli before the decision was finally taken not to go ahead with supplies of Aroclor for this application. As you may know, Pirelli are confident they can obtain supplies of Aroclor-type material from others, notably Caffaro in Italy, and therefore requested they to have the complete Technical Service Report from us to round off the work we had carried out with them.

I can confirm to you that Pirelli have been advised of our decision not to supply them with any further quantities of Aroclor. In fact, during this programme, the last sale of Aroclor was made to Pirelli in 1971 and no further sales have been made since.
