EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt has picked Alexandra Dunn, executive director of the Environmental Council of States, to run EPA's Region 1, which covers Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

Earlier this year, ECOS, a state-focused nonprofit group, called for a "recalibration" of the roles of EPA and the states on environmental regulation, which the group called "cooperative federalism 2.0." That echoed Pruitt's call for states to take on a greater role in both regulation and enforcement.

Dunn has been at ECOS since 2014, and was recently elected to the American College of Environmental Lawyers' Board of Regents. Prior to ECOS, Dunn headed the Association of Clean Water Administrators and was an attorney for the American Chemistry Council.
