Re: List of potential participants to Community Advisory Panel

Diane:

This fax provides more detail than I left on your voice mail last night. The table I sent you provides a complete list of contacts and potential contacts. The list indicates if contact has been made.

Altogether, the panel should probably have approximately 12 community participants. I see little reason to seek more wider participation, given the apparent low level of conflict in the community. The participants should probably be divided up roughly as follows:

- 4 residential neighbors
- 2 neighborhood based businesses and/or a local minister
- 2 individuals working on neighborhood/social service concerns ?
- a member of the LEPC
- 2-3 city-wide environmentalists ?
- 1-2 academics with a specialty in an environmental science or public health ?
- a neighborhood person working on environmental issues, if one can be found ?

Presumably, some individuals may overlap between categories.

It is my sense that Monsanto has developed good working relationships with many of the community leaders in Anniston. In our initial meeting, both you and Jack indicated a desire to identify and train a local facilitator, and to limit my involvement to start-up and training the facilitator (as well as providing on-going advice to the facilitator as needed, I presume). Given the low level of apparent conflict in the community, as well as how busy my own schedule has become, I am recommending that the plant identify this person as soon as possible. Would you like me to work directly with Jack on identifying someone?

Jack, Let's discuss. - Diane
