(By U. P. Leased Wire to The Star)

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21.—An amphibian pilot of the William Wrigley organization was sent to the scene of the wreck of the Panama mail liner Columbus, off the Baja California coast, 41 days after it struck on the rocky reefs of Socorro island, 300 miles above the canal.

J. H. Patrick, president of the Wilmington Transportation Company and the pilot was piloted by Kit Carlisle Morton, with a co-pilot named Bliss, a two-hour inland flight and a representative of an insurance underwriting company aboard.

"It was estimated to us that there was a compartment under water that had to be reached and that dynamite was needed," Pat said. "They put a couple of bombs aboard and took off yesterday from San Diego.

Patrick said he understood the plane had proper clearance papers for flight over Mexican territory.
