LARGE GLASS WALL GIVES THIS HOME FEEL OF SPACIOUSNESS

By A. T. Cumiford, Consulting Engineer

If swimming pool and garden are not for card tables, and other uses in the family, this Home of the Week was specifically designed for you.

The entire end of the house facing the garden is built of glass, giving a feeling of spaciousness. This part of the house serves to invite the entire garden inside. This complete garden wing of the house is treated as one large, free space of intimate living with best exposure, with interesting to-be-seen property.

With some simple fencing the garden or patio may be adapted so as to provide a very liveable outside room to the house.

The plumbing has been economically engineered by placing the bathroom and kitchen on the same wall. The kitchen is in close proximity to the dining room.

The walls on either side of the dining area may either run to the ceiling or be low, divider walls, built just high enough above eye-level to afford the privacy desired and yet giving the feeling of spaciousness along the ceiling line. Ornamental objects and plants may be placed on top of these stub walls.

The bed is spaced between two closets, and when made up for the day the area it occupies may be [illegible]

There is ample space for storage off the bath and bedroom, together with the guest closet and garden [illegible] This room provides plenty of room for the permanent lounging of two, together with room

This house may be [illegible] with outlook a lot of farmhouse type roof instead of the flat top shown.

Dog Helps Aussie Mining

[illegible] Collie [illegible] ring. Never served a man for betting. Collie is a thriving coal mining town of 3000 people 130 miles south of Perth.

Collie claims the best record of any mining town in Australia [illegible] rate of production and virtually no absenteeism. Many say Collie has this happy record because the betting laws are enforced.

Says Mayor John P. Gillespie, who also is inspector of mines: "The betting freedom has done no harm to the town and many of the girls like it. Right there is one reason why we have had [illegible] flutter with the books.

Newspapers report almost all the [illegible] good [illegible] her people.

Loyalty Tests

CHICAGO (AP) — [illegible] type of loyalty test will be [illegible] This one interests [illegible] with a person's political [illegible]

The test, offered by Dr. Burleigh B. Gardner to the annual meeting [illegible] personnel managers, [illegible] and co-operation.

Gardner, executive director of Social Research, Inc., contends that "many business executives [illegible] loyalty—something which requires more than handling and a pay check."

He said that the chief management executives there which consistently try to exalt the loyalty and co-operation of the employees, the chances that [illegible] the company's name.

Dr. Gardner said [illegible] loyal the employee:

1. Do employees feel association of company goals and needs [illegible] individually, a part of the [illegible] improvement?

2. Do employees feel their efforts are regarded as really important by management?

4. Do employees feel they are treated fairly?
