Committee members are hoping to hold hearings in May on the administration's proposals for extending a number of programs including defense housing and direct loans to veterans that are scheduled to expire in the next few months.

So far, Federal Housing Director Albert M. Cole has indicated he will restrict his testimony to current legislative needs and delay presenting the Eisenhower administration's overall housing program until studies now underway are completed.

try members point out that, if such first aid is delayed until 1954, it would not take effect until 1955.

"Historically, political fortunes stand or fall with the economic well-being of the country. If the 11 billion dollar home building industry is being depended upon to help sustain the economy through the 1954 elections, legislative steps must be taken a full year or more in advance of any downturn."
