closed doors, but by agreement federation officials released a number of the speeches made.

"FLOOR OR CEILING."

George E. Metzger, secretary of the Illinois agricultural association, told the delegates that the "floor" placed under the prices of hogs, butter, poultry and eggs by the department of agriculture might turn out to be a "ceiling" instead.

"The administration's new policy of buying farm commodities at set prices, while at the same time calling for a tremendous production increase in the same commodities, points toward the operation of the government prices as maximums," Metzger said.

"Agriculture made progress in the past eight years and we had been getting closer to the point where the farm program seemed likely to work when Washington upset the whole thing."

Arthur H. Lauterbach of Chicago, general manager of the pure milk association, which is one of the federation's biggest member cooperatives, contended

N. P. Hull, the federation president, joined in the protest with the assertion that farmers were being asked to produce more "without the slightest assurance that they will be guaranteed even their own cost of increasing production."

He expressed the hope that before the meeting ends tomorrow night a program might be worked out "which will return agriculture to the plane of other industries."
