EDF/CMA Participation In PCB Rulemaking

"Snags" in developing a consensus proposal for a consent degree to resolve the electrical equipment rulemaking between the utilities and environmentalists have not been resolved. CMA was unsuccessful in getting these two parties to modify their positions. CMA elected not to attend the session this week among utilities, environmentalists and EPA representatives unless some effort is made by the parties to negotiate their differences. As of this writing (Thursday, July 14), the stalemate continues - the "negotiation" session was scheduled for Friday in Washington.
