COURT BREVITIES.

Theodore Chiro was held in default of $1000 bail to answer to the Superior Court on a grand-larceny charge. He went through the pockets of his roommate at a lodging-house on North Main street.

John F. Carrillo escaped with $10 fine on his conviction for cruelty to animals. He made good his boast that he was not in jail yet, by inducing Justice Chambers to withdraw the alternative jail sentence and give him time to dig up the money.

The colored boy, Charles Stanley, was held in $500 bail for stealing a bicycle.

"Answers" of a Sort.

A school teacher who maintains there is altogether too much association of ideas without a proper understanding of their relative meanings has instituted a series of tests, which might be regarded by some people as traps.

He wishes his pupils to acquire the art of accurate listening, as well as quick thinking, and to this end he occasionally inserts one of his catch questions in the midst of a set of the ordinary sort.

He gives the two instances following, in which he says the answers came with joyful promptness from the entire class:

"Whose hatchet never told a lie?"

"George Washington's."

"Who said that 'Nelson expects every man this day to do his duty'?"

"England."—[Tit-Bits.
