He Ja Starza with a or even seriously hurt ron walloping, but the effect of the scores of hooks and full swings that thudded off the colleagues head and body was deadly.

The truth is that the one-punch knockout is a peculiar thing. If a fighter is in shape and fairly evenly matched and not completely tired out, it invariably will take a series of blows to starch him.

Joe Louis, in his prime perhaps as lethal a puncher as the Rock, scored his knockouts with a flurry of lefts and rights.

A select few of the ringside critics said the Rock used only two lefts against LaStarza, hitting him, hitting low, and hitting after the break. They exaggerated both the intent and the effect.

Marciano did none of these things on purpose and it isn't in his nature. LaStarza did not suggest that any such mishaps contributed to his defeat. The Bronx boy made a graceful loser.

What they will do for another challenger is almost beyond guessing. If it proves to be Ezzard Charles next February, as is being hinted, they better had hold it on the West Coast, or somewhere. The bull fiddle player is a back number in these parts.

It would almost be better to give Rolard another going-over.
