mesothelioma, more cases caused by asbestos, because of the exposures that occurred in the 1940s, '50s and '60s.

Perhaps also there were better histories taken, so we don't know that.

Q That would be speculation, though?

A We don't know that, yes.

Q Are you aware from your own review of the literature, Doctor, whether there have been reported mesothelioma cases in occupations that common sense would tell us have no asbestos exposure?

MR. IGNATOWSKI: Objection.

MS. HINES: Objection.

THE COURT: Overruled.

A I am not aware of cases that have been reported from occupations where common sense would say there is no asbestos exposure.

I am aware of Dr. McDonald's study of cases -- I am sorry, cases of occupational exposures where there is no known exposure, but I don't know of anyone reporting those of occupational exposures.
