...THERE'S ONE GREAT ADVANTAGE in making your own fruit cake. You can be sure of the quality of the ingredients. Another is that you can make it in the size you want. Still another is that you can make it to suit your own taste.

Fruit cakes are the most delicious of all cakes when they are rich and moist. Many recipes call for a generous amount of fruit and nuts and only enough batter to hold them together. Others call for a thin batter and a small amount of fruit. Neither is satisfactory.

Consequently, after years of experimenting, we decided that no new (or old) recipe we test compares with our own favorite fruit cake. Consequently, it is available again this year, to any one sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Prudence Penny, in care of The Examiner.

So many questions arise about baking and storing fruit cake, and there's so little room on recipe cards to cover all the important points. Fruit cakes are better if the batter is weighed in the pans so that the baking time can be accurate.

We allow two and one half hours for the first pound of batter for each additional pound. We do not recommend baking more than five pounds of batter in any one pan.

Parchment paper, greased and placed into the greased pan, is more satisfactory for lining than most wax paper. It is heavier, less affected by heat and gives more protection.

When the cakes are baked, they are removed from the pans and placed on a wire cake rack to cool. The parchment paper is loosened, but NOT removed from the cake. When the cake is cooled, the paper is put back in the original position, and the cake wrapped in a cloth wrung
