Dear Sirs:

I just read a newspaper article which mentioned that an industrial chemical that your company manufactures has been linked to birth defects in animals. The article said that PCB (polychorinated biphenyls) is used in such products as floor waxes, out door paints and other household products.

As I am concerned both for the sake of my family and for our total environment, the Earth, I want to urge you not only to restrict sales of this product, but to offer a list of products containing PCB to the public (at least to me) so we can be sure to avoid introducing PCB into our houses and yards.

Until I obtain such a list, I will not be using any Monsanto products - and I intend to urge my friends to avoid them also.

Sincerely yours,

Mrs James A. Johnston Jr
