Dear Dan:

As requested, I have determined the percentage of voluntary and involuntary terminations among the exposed and unexposed employees in the Northwestern/Monsanto Health Study. Please note that the total number of terminations may not be the exact number, but it is very close and the percentages should be fairly accurate.

I have also determined cumulative duration by department for any of the employees in the study population who ever worked in any of the exposed departments, in addition to the total number of employees who ever worked in each of the exposed departments. The cumulative exposure is divided into five time intervals (< 1 month, 1 month < 3 months, 3 months < 6 months, 6 months < 12 months, and 12+ months) and is grouped by department and major process unit (chlorophenols, penatchlorophenols, and 2,4,5-T esters).

Please let me know if you need any additional information or if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Terry L. Leet
