Train Disaster Almost Averted By Switch Engineman

Philadelphia. — (U.P.) — Testimony at an official investigation into the wreck of the Pennsylvania railroad's congressional limited last Monday night revealed today that a towerman came within seconds of averting the derailmen which killed 79 persons and injured 116 others.

Harold McClintock, a switch engineman, told the investigators he saw flames shooting from the journal box of one of the cars on the express as it flashed by him three-quarters of a mile from the scene of the accident. Mr. Clintock said he shouted to A. J. Carlin, a yard clerk, who ran to a telephone and called John F. Boyer, towerman at the signal immediately adjoining Frankford junction, scene of the crash.

Boyer told investigators that even as he received the message the express jumped the tracks and cars began piling up.

South Pacific Supplies Surprise Patterson

GUADALCANAL, Sept. 5. — (Delayed) —(U.P.)—Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson and Lt. Gen. William S. Knudsen, army production expert, today expressed surprise and satisfaction with the defenses and reserves of supplies built up in the south Pacific, particularly in the Solomons.

"Future operations from this most advanced base look good," Patterson said. "We are going to have more equipment planes and ships out here, and there is no doubt our drive will be greatly pushed in the south Pacific as well as the southwest Pacific."

The pair visited Guadalcanal battlefields and chatted freely with troops. Knudsen was particularly impressed with large
