ground, but once in a while it is necessary, and now I see that I've been doing about three times the work I should have been doing. My spade was an old one and dull and rusty. A person would never think of using a knife that way, but it never occurred to me that it made the work so much harder than it should have been.

"A couple of days ago the handle to my spade broke, and I went out and bought a new,
