sicely to care for 1000 children.

2. Formation of a counseling service in San Francisco to advise mothers whether or not to go to work, and also to advise them on specific problems relating to their welfare.

3. Establishment of child care centers in San Francisco for the school-age child, housed in school buildings, staffed by recreation department personnel with hours to fit the working mothers' day.

4. Participation of secondary school children in a carefully worked out program of war activity as a constructive thing in itself and also as a means of checking delinquency.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS

The recommendations of the Bay Area Council of Child Care presented by Dr. Stolz were as follows:

1. That nursery schools be established for children between the ages of 2 years and 4 years, 9 months.

2. That all-day kindergarten schools be established for 5-year-olds. (Children between 4 years, 9 months, and 6 years.)

3. That before and after school care be provided for children of school age.

FOSTER HOMES

4. That foster homes care for emergency situations.

5. That consultation services be provided for mothers who are going out of the home to work.

Not only is there a housing shortage in San Francisco, said Mrs. Shames, "but there always has been a problem as to what working mothers should do with their children."

She declared that all San Francisco nursery schools have waiting lists an dthat more than 500 applications have been received in 10 days.

"We know that one of the reservoirs of labor is women not yet employed," she said.

Dr. Stolz urged the committee to seek establishment of standards for supervision of nursery schools.

She decried the "fly-by-night" or "opportunist schools."

DEMAND GROWING

In Richmond but one nursery is operating, declared School Superintendent Walter Helms, who foresaw a still more aggravated child care problem in the forthcoming employment of another 25,000 persons in the shipbuilding industry there.

"We have been told that 8000 more housing units will be built soon by the Housing Authority and Maritime Commission, which affords some slight relief in our condition," said the educator.

Astronomical figures of to prospective Richmond employment were used by Arthur A. Hall, manager of the United States Employment Service there, in describing the employment situation.

Hall said that "I have an order for 24,200 workers received this morning from one employer. And there also will be 65,000 additional workers needed in Richmond in 1943."

And the housing situation in Richmond, Hall stated, is running counter with employment as a problem.

"We are losing hundreds of men every week for lack of housing."

YARDS PLEDGE AID

Paul Newell, assistant personnel manager of Richmond Shipyard No. 1, told the committee hearing, which was attended by 200 women, "that I can state the Richmond shipyards will co-operate in every way to obtain day nurseries."

Others who were heard by the Kenney committee were Mrs. Jean Piexotto, placement officer for the United States Employment Service; Mrs. Margaret McMurray of the University of California School of Nurses; Inez M. Booth, executive secretary of the Contra Costa Development Commission; Dr. Lovissa Waggoner, professor of child development at Mills College; Mrs. Charles Black, representing the Vallejo Housing Authority; Hubert Barnes, child welfare representative of the Solano County Welfare Association, and Mrs. Charlotte Cooper, assistant welfare supervisor for the Sacramento Area.
