Avocado growers are invited to attend a tour of avocado groves in Ventura County on Saturday. This interesting tour has been planned by the University of California Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with the Avocado Department of the Southern Sunny Fruit Bureau.

Starting at 9:30 in the morning at Santa Paula Valley and Las Las Pilas Estates areas. The tour will start and stop at 9:30 a.m. at the Las Las Pilas Orchard Co. property north of Santa Paula. Here we will see orchards grown on different methods of irrigation and varieties including many of the new hybrids. Jack Hackney and Dr. Wayne Hunnicutt will show and explain the plantings on this property.

At the Garry Brothers property in the Santa Rosa Valley we will see a new plastic-lined reservoir used for irrigation for both avocados and citrus. A new planting of the Creelman avocado will be observed as well as old producing Fuertes and Edranols. The group will have lunch at the picnic grounds on the W. B. Garry property in the area.

Following lunch we will visit Santa Rosa
