On March 19, Mr. Wood was again admitted to Baltimore County General Hospital. And he was admitted for, again, he was having pain and shortness of breath.

At that time his right chest pain and his shoulder pain had gotten increasingly, increasingly worse up to the point that at this time when he was in the hospital, he had to be given morphine injections.

A chest X-ray was performed by Dr. Levine at the hospital at that time which basically only showed some slight improvement, and his CT scan, however, showed that he was progressively worse than the first scan that was taken in January of 1990.

Again, while he was at Baltimore County for this third admission in March of 1990, he had a thoracentesis done where he had 450 ccs of fluid that was removed from his lung.

He showed some further improvement at that time, and he was discharged on March 23, 1990.

Now, on April 12th, Dr. Levine again saw Mr. Wood at his office, and he ordered an MRI of the liver
