Q And can you describe why you hold that opinion?

A Sure. Mr. Wood worked for the post office for a number of years, but his first few years he worked time period generally from '48 to '52.

He worked in the garage, and I think that was the Preston Street garage, am I right? I think so.

He was assigned to work in the tire shop as one of his very first jobs.

The tire shop was close to the main part of the garage and as part of his work, Mr. Wood would remove tires or handle tires after they had been removed, and would be close to the areas where the mechanics were working on brakes, among other duties.

Q Now, I want to talk to you about the types of work with brakes that can produce exposures to asbestos.

Are there operations on brakes during both installation and during removal and replacement that can produce exposures?
