SKIN IRRITANT FROM BRUCEA
ANTIDYSENTERICA EXTRACTION

Mr. James A. Ellard
Dayton - 1250

We have used three volunteers and applied the subject material in two levels. One was .01 mg. in 0.1 ml of ethyl alcohol and the other was a strength ten times that much three days later. None of the three of us developed any irritation.

I do not know what all this proves but I think we will retest each other in about one week with the stronger solution again and see what happens.

I would say that it is not a primary irritant at this strength but, of course, three cases do not prove or disprove sensitivity.
