BY MR. DAILY:

Q Now, during your years as a mechanic and while you were working at Foreign Motors in particular, would it be fair to say during the 1960s that your work with brakes was about 20 to 25 percent of your time?

A Pretty close, yes.

Q Okay. I think you told us during deposition during the '70s it was about the same percentage; is that right?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Now, during all of these years while you were working at Foreign Motors, there were other mechanics working there, weren't there, sir?

A Yes, there was.

Q Okay. In fact, I think you told us in the '50s when you started, there were about nine or ten other mechanics?

A Around there.

Q Some point it got up to around 11 or 15 and at one point even 22; is that right?
