No Women's Lib on Links

For the Women's Liberation Movement, Carol Mann's blowup in a especially-arranged golf match against Doug Sanders must have been a major setback.

It proved that there's no two ways about it, women on the profesional level are no match for the men — despite claims of Women's Lib supporters.

But tall, blonde Miss Mann, who proved to be a lady while losing by 13 strokes to Dapper Dan, was not completely convinced.

"I still think that women — and that I — can compete," the 29-year-old Baltimore, Md., resident was quoted as saying just after she skied to an 85 in a wind-blown match against Sanders in Grossinger.

'No Chance'

"There's no chance women can play equally with the men on the tour," says Laguna Seca Golf fairway swingers on the Peninsula. "Women just don't seem to be strong enough."

On playing with men, Gwen says, "It doesn't bother me in the least because I've been doing it ever since I started playing. When I was a junior, there weren't many girls around playing good golf. So I always played with the guys."

But Miss Bennett admits, she's always had trouble playing with her older brother Lane. Brigham Young University's top man who is fresh from a Lowery Classic victory.

"He's the only male golfer who makes me nervous," she said. "Lane was always better than I was when we were younger, and he was always telling me what I could do to be better. Most of the time he made me lose confidence."

"But it really doesn't bother me (playing with scratch male golfers)," Gwen concluded. "I just play my own game and don't press."

Obviously, Carol Mann must have been pressing. "Think heaven that's over," she said after her 85 — one of the worst competitive rounds she's ever carded.

But, said one of her sympathizers — a male: "It isn't fair. She hits the ball way up in the air and this wind will kill her. Sanders doesn't have much of a backswing, but he really bores the ball when he hits it."

One of the Better Wind Players

Miss Mann, however, was playing from the women's tees. Sanders, admittedly one of the better wind players on the tour, was yards behind when each hole began.

Carol, herself, said when the match was over: "I feel so sheepish. I feel I let all the women down."

Not so, Sanders said afterwards. And not so, says Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club pro Lee Martin, who has played many a round with Donna Caponi, two-time U.S. Women's Open champion.

"Donna's one of the top women golfers going," Martin said. "And she, like any other good female golfer, is great to play with. But the women are just not any competition for the boys out on the tour."

"It's just two different worlds," he added. "You just can't compare the two tours at all."

Martin, himself, is a strong supporter of women's golf. While he hasn't played golf with the attractive Miss Bennett, he knows three of the Peninsula's prettiest female golfers — and three of the best.

Great Potential

"I think young Janet Coles of Aptos has great potential," Martin said. "And I've watched Mrs. Barbara Handley hit the ball. She hits it well. If she worked on her game, she'd beat anybody around here. Joan Damon (who last week won the Hawaiian Women's Amateur) is another good one. In Hawaii, she was under men's par in one round."

Concludes Martin, "Maybe they should increase the purses for the women because they really deserve it. The girls put on a good show — but the just shouldn't compete against the men, it takes the femininity out of it."

"I felt I let the women down," said the 6-foot-3-Miss Mann after her loss to Sanders. "I can't remember when I last shot 85."

However, Miss Mann did prove a point — even if she set the liberationists back a notch in the world of professional golf.

Kite High in Amateur With Record Rounds

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "You mean I broke the old record by seven strokes and all I've got is a two-stroke lead?" 26-year-old Tom Kite Jr. exclaimed as he moved into the final round of the U.S. Amateur Golf Championship here.

Kite, Austin, Tex., shot a 1-over-par 71 Friday for a 54-hole total of 207 on the 6,495-yard Waverley Country Club course here.

Lanny Wadkins, 20, who lost the first-round lead, moved into second place with a madcap 1-under-par 69 for a 209 total. Wadkins, Richmond, Va., a Wake Forest junior, had a double bogey on the 15th hole, then turned around and sank a wedge on 18 for an eagle three.

James Simons, 20, of Butler, Pa., another Wake Forest student, was third at 210. Jim Gabrielsen, Atlanta, was at 211, followed by 1966 champ Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., at 212.

Kite made the exclamation of disbelief about his thin lead after an official announced that the 54-hole total bettered the three-round mark of 214 held by three others. He rose above par for the first time in the tournament by missing five-foot putts on the 17th and 18th holes for bogeys.

A total of seven players bettered the 214 mark.

Kite bogeyed the first and sixth holes against a birdie on five on the front nine. He birdied the 12th and 13th holes around the turn before the last two bogeys put him over par for the day.

Wadkins, Southern Amateur Champion, had a wild finish. He had a double-bogey on the par-4 15th hole when a shot carried over the green, bounced out of bounds, and then hit the roof of a house. He came right back on 16 for a birdie-two after missing a hole-in-one by inches. After bogeying 17, he made his eagle.

If Wadkins had made the hole-in-one, it would have been the second of the day and third of the tournament. Scott Bess, 20, of Columbia, Mo., aced the par-3 sixth hole, but finished the day with a 73 for a 218 total. Gene Howard of Chicago had aced the 11th tole during the second round.

Kite and Wadkins were paired for today's national amateur television final round. If there is a tie at the end of regulation play, the tournament goes into an 18-hole playoff Sunday.

Leading to Last Round

Tom Kite Jr. of Austin, Tex., shows his wrap-around form as he tees off on the fourth hole during yesterday's third round in the National Amateur Golf Championships at Portland, Ore. He leads the field going into today's final 18 holes.

Reluctant Tarp Foils Bucs

By The Associated Press

Rain, rain, go away . . . and take that ornery tarpaulin in Pittsburgh with you.

With the Pirates leading 4-1 Friday night, Philadelphia's Don Money walked to open the seventh inning when the rains came. The automatic tarpaulin, which rises out of a trench along the third base line in Pittsburgh's new Three Rivers Stadium, was set in motion.

Up went the lid, out came the tarp a few feet and then . . . Bang!

With a loud crash, part of the cover fell back on the roller, wedging it. When repairmen failed to get it going, Pirate officials contacted Charles Feeney, president of the National League, and received permission to suspend the game and continue it before tonight's regularly scheduled contest.

Pending the final outcome, the Pirates remained .0004 of a percentage point ahead of the Chicago Cubs in the National League East. The Cubs beat the New York Mets 7-4, dropping the losers 1½ games back.

Elsewhere in the NL, San Diego clobbered Cincinnati 15-2, Houston downed Los Angeles 7-3 and Montreal edged St. Louis 9-7 in 13 innings. San Francisco and Atlanta were rained out in the fifth inning with the Giants leading 1-0.

Randy Hundley's two-run single in the seventh inning broke a 3-3 tie and sparked the Cubs to their first Wrigley Field victory over the Mets this season in seven starts. Paul Popovich made it a three-run inning with a sacrifice fly and Jim Hickman homered in the eighth. Hudley had doubled across the Cubs' first run in the second.

Pitcher Mike Corkins belted a grand slam homer and Clarence Gaston and Nate Colbert also connected as the Padres tagged Cincinnati ace Jim Merritt and three relievers for 18 hits. Bobby Tolan homered for the Reds.

Jim Maloney, making his first appearance for Cincinnati since he was injured last April, was touched for two runs in the sixth on Gaston's homer and two more in the seventh.

Jim Wynn singled to start a four-run uprising in the eighth inning, then singled home the final run of the inning as the Astros beat the Dodgers. Tom Haller hit a two-run homer for the losers.

Gary Sutherland's sacrifice fly and a wild pitch gave Montreal two runs and a 9-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in 13 innings. Montreal took a 7-5 lead on two bases loaded walks in the 10th, but Jose Cardinal tied it with a two-run homer in the bottom of the inning.

Solo homers by Richie Hebner, Bob Robertson and Willie Stargell staked the Pirates to their 4-1 lead.

Roberto Clemente of the Pirates injured his lower back as he grounded out.

Pac-8 Football: Tribe Film Test for TV Roles

STANFORD (AP) — A game-type scrimmage this afternoon will go a long way on deciding Stanford's starters against potent Arkansas in their season opener at Little Rock Sept. 12.

Stanford Coach John Ralston will have cameras trained on the scrimmage for the sake of the films will be a major factor in deciding several starters in positions still up for grabs.

Hillary Shockley ran impressively at fullback in Friday's drill. Shockley, a 6-foot-1, 225-pound junior, had been bothered by a pulled hamstring muscle.

Kicker Steve Horowitz looked good with four successive field goals from 50 yards out.

Oregon State sophomore Jim Lilly might be starting safety against UCLA Sept. 12; senior safety Gary Barton is out for the year with a knee injury.

Oregon tailback Bobby Moore scored two touchdowns, one on a 97-yard run, during a scrimmage for the Skywriters tour; quarterback Tom Blanchard completed 19 of 14 passes for 151 yards . . .

USC quarterbacks Jimmy Jones and Mike Rae were sharp in handing off to running backs Clarence Davis, Charlie Evans, Lou Harris and Sam Cunningham . . .

UCLA coaches praised lettermen Ron Carver and sophomore Allan Ellis on kick returns . . .

Washington State junior quarterback Jack Wigmore drew praise . . .

Washington added several roll-out passes to the attack, while most time was spent with drop backs.

Cal named a starting backfield of Dave Penhall at quarterback, Stan Murray and Don Dorty at running backs and Jackie Jefferson at flanker back for today's scrimmage . . .
