...says.

Evalee's cup bubbles over with pizazz and she has been pouring generous portions of it into the "dancercise" classes she teaches at the Claremont Hotel-Resort's Pool and Racquet Club and the Oakland YWCA.

Evalee thinks it could be a new art-form.

"I choreograph exercise to give meaning to motion," she explained. "I am a dancer who took her art, transformed it for the average person and made it something delightful."

The result is that the average person, under the Harrison system, can turn on the music and shake a leg, twitch a shoulder or snap a finger and tighten up the tummy in the process.

...with a Debussy prelude or a Beatles' frug, depending, of course, on personal cultural tastes.

Evalee, who is 28, is blonde, green-eyed and stands (which is seldom because she always seems to be in motion) a trim 5 foot 4½ inches.

She weighs 117 pounds, which she claims isn't easy because she is also a gourmet cook who likes to eat.

"And you've got to face it, a person can't reduce simply through exercise, he must use will power to push away from the table," she said.

Evalee worked her way through the University of Michigan dancing in shows while other girls were earning money as baby-sitters.

She has toured with the U.S.O., appeared in numerous musical productions, is a

..."They liked me on television and I wish I could get back on it with my own show," she said. "The teen-agers thought I was a swinger, the golden agers thought I was a breath of fresh air and the housewives thought I was a nice looking girl but no sex-siren."

When she isn't leading the teen-agers, the golden agers and the average housewives through musical manipulations, she is Mrs. Michael Harrison, a something less than average housewife.

Her husband is an associate professor of electrical engineering at the University of California and they have one son, Craig, 8, who joins his mom in their finger-snapping rock 'n' roll physical fitness program.

He inherited his mother's pizazz.

Connor Says Program Will Curb Inflation

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor predicts the Administration's program will effectively curb inflation.

He told newsmen yesterday he sees no prospect for a business depression.

Even if the Viet Nam war SHOULD END, Connor said, he believes the nation's economy could adjust and shift to satisfying civilian needs.

Connor told the Council of State Chambers of Commerce that President Johnson's anti-inflation suggestions to Congress last week will act rigorously to curb government expenditures consistent with national security requirements and the well being of our people, ease the nation's money markets and apply a measured restraining influence on the private economy.

International Post Goes to Haweeli

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — David Haweeli, an executive with years of experience in foreign business operations, has been elected president of Federated Department Stores International, Ralph Lazarus, president of the parent Federated Department Stores, Inc., said.

Haweeli, 46, of Greenwich, Conn., has been director of international development for Federated since last November. Previously he worked as a vice president for Campbell Soup International and the Rockefellers' International Basic Economy Corp.

PSA Posts New Passenger Mark

SAN DIEGO — Pacific Southwest Airlines posted record breaking passenger totals during August and established new milestones in its fast growing commercial pilot training program for other carriers, it was announced by PSA President J. Floyd Andrews.

Surpassing all previous monthly passenger totals, PSA carried 318,[illegible] passengers during August. This was a 66 per cent increase over August 1965 and a repeat of July 1966's 16,000-plus passengers-per-day average.
