things directly, the committee members are the ones that gave me the input. Again, I was not an expert in asbestos and all that and I relied on the committee for this information.

Q Mr. Drislane --

A Look, I am going to have to get out of here tonight. I gotta -- I'm taking my wife out to dinner on my anniversary. Are we going to get out of here tonight?

MR. PURCELL: Yes, sir.

MR. FRIESTEDT: Can we go off the video record for a second?

MR. PURCELL: I have about two more minutes. Do you want to go off?

MR. FRIESTEDT: Continue?

THE WITNESS: If it's two more minutes, I will continue, yeah.

BY MR. PURCELL:

Q Mr. Drislane, I want to ask you and give you an opportunity to tell me and to tell us when, in your assessment, did the FMSI first learn about the dangers of asbestos?

MR. FRIESTEDT: Objection to form.

A I guess about the time the Asbestos Study Committee was formed and I believe that was in 1971.
