which they hedged.

The fair values of the Dana swap agreements were an aggregate liability of $11 at December 31, 2003. The fair values of all swap agreements were determined by obtaining pricing estimates from independent financial institutions.