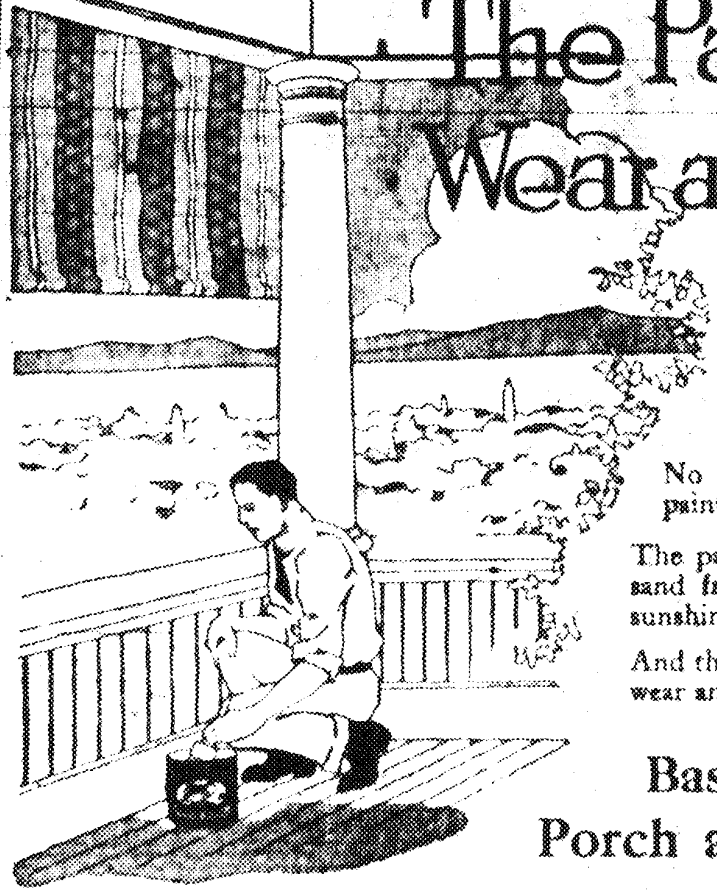
The Paint For Wear and Weather



There are just two things that attack paint—WEAR and WEATHER.

The wear is about the same in any locality, but the weather depends on climatic conditions.

No place about the home is so hard on paint as the porch and steps.

The paint must stand the grit of dirt and sand from scuffing feet and the rain and sunshine.

And the one paint that will give the longest wear and hold its color and surface is

Bass-Hueter Porch and Step Paint

This paint is made on the Pacific Coast especially for the climate of the Pacific Coast.

It forms a hard, elastic coating that resists exposure and wear better than any other paint; and the test of time in thousands of homes on the Pacific Coast is the best proof of its lasting quality.

It is economy to buy the best, for then repainting is not necessary for a long time. You have to paint twice as often when you use a cheap product. Yet there is but little difference between the cost of inferior paint and Bass-Hueter's.

Six desirable shades to choose from—let us show you the color card.

A little attention and a trifling cost will keep the home looking well and retard its depreciation. We will be pleased to offer suggestions in the use of Bass-Hueter Paints, Stains, Enamels and Varnishes for making the home beautiful. Remember it pays to buy guaranteed goods.
