RE: Safety Recommendation

REFERENCE

TO : J. A. Glass

In their meeting on November 6, the Office Safety Committee discussed a situation which it felt should be brought to the attention of the Safety Department.

There is a "blind" corner, which is a potential safety hazard in the alleyway-streets at the back of the Main Office, between the back entrances of the Office Annex and the Research I and II buildings. At one time, a large mirror was mounted in that area in order that traffic could be seen from all directions; the mirror is no longer there. The truck and pedestrian traffic is heavy, which often creates a problem in safely walking or driving through the area.

A person walking has to be very cautious, because if a truck is backing into an unloading area, the truck driver in all probability could not even see a pedestrian. That is especially the case when the large truck loads and unloads the "yellow monster", and the trucks deliver supplies to the cafeteria.

We recommend that a mirror (or mirrors) be mounted at a strategic point to make walking and driving safer in the area behind the buildings.
