VATICAN LOOKS FOR LITTLE CHANGE IN FRENCH RELATIONS

ROME, Oct. 7.—The vatican deplores the anti-clerical attitude of M. Herriot, premier of France, feels that there will be little change in the relations between the Holy See and the French republic for some time to come.

It was one of M. Herriot's campaign promises that he would suppress the French embassy to the Holy See. The embassy is still in existence and little has been done which would signify any change being made.

In French Catholic circles in Rome, it is generally believed that the present relations between France and the vatican will continue as at present. It is pointed out that ex-Premier Briand was a stern anti-clerical but changed his hostile attitude because, it is thought, he realized the great value of having a diplomatic representative in Rome as well as having a papal nuncio in Paris.

M. Doulcet, present French ambassador to the Holy See, has recently had very important conversations with the French premier. French prelates here believe that M. Doulcet succeeded in showing the necessity of maintaining the present relations and of continuing the present diplomatic arrangements.

STATE OFFICIAL ACCUSES MOTOR BUS OPERATORS

Assuming the motor stage and truck lines in California of an attempt to escape taxation, Chairman Harvey M. Toy of the state highway commission has launched an attack on amendment No. 1 on the November ballot.

Toy has issued a statement asking fair-minded voters to withhold their approval of the act pending action at the next session of the state legislature.

Would Exempt Carriers

Toy asserted that the act would have the effect of exempting motor carriers from present personal property taxes, state motor vehicle license and weight fees, city regulatory license and [illegible] line tax.

The highway official pointed out that the proposed constitutional amendment also provides that the 4 per cent gross receipts tax collected from the motor carriers "shall be used for the current expenditures of the state or such special funds as may be provided by law." At present these taxes are divided between the state and the counties for highway maintenance and construction.

LAW WEAKENED ON THREE SHAKESPEARES

By United Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—"All he had [illegible] there I sat with three Shakespeares staring him in the face. Then the law butted in," said H. F. Henderson when he was brought before Justice Hanby on a charge of gambling.

"You say you had three Shakespeares?" asked the court.

"Yes."

"And your adversary—Whittiers on Longfellow?"

"You bet," Henderson replied.

"Well, that sounds like a poker term, but—"

"You see, judge, my wife wouldn't let us use regular playin' cards, so we made out with an old deck of 'Authors.' We didn't figger it was as in the law," the defendant replied.

Justice Hanby gasped. Henderson was freed.

WHAT HAPPENS TO WOMEN IN POLITICS

By United Press.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., (United Press).—[illegible] by it being her first venture into politics. Mrs. James A. Cable, democratic candidate for congress in the second congressional district of Kansas, found she was running against her best friend.

On top of that, it was her best friend, Mrs. G. S. Guyer, who first told her of the nomination.

"You tell your husband I am out to beat him," Mrs. Cable told Mrs. Guyer over the telephone.

Mrs. Cable, who declares she is strong for enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, said she intended to conduct a friendly campaign.
