Sam Pickard just called and told me that the Escambia Bay Conference will be officially reconvened on February 23 and 24 in Pensacola at the Pensacola Public Auditorium. Sam also told me the disturbing fact that William D. Ruckelshaus, Administrator of the EPA, will probably attend this conference.

I would suggest that we hold a meeting here in St. Louis some time in the near future to discuss strategy in connection with this conference. As was the case last year, John Spano and I will be available to the Pensacola Plant to aid before and during the conference. I would suggest that any proposed meeting to discuss strategy be held during the week of February 15-19. My suggestion for this late date is so that we can have as much information as is available in connection with the proposed conference.
