The long tunnel will cost an estimated $48,706,000. The entire Trinity project will eat up $262,000,000 and more. Target date for completion has been set for 1962 but reclamation officials don't think it will be finished that early. In its closing days the last Congress appropriated reclamation funds totalling $43,512,000, most of it to keep the present Trinity activities on the move. Completion of the project will add millions of gallons of water to California irrigation ditches, provide additional power sites, add to the state's recreational spots and aid in the conservation of fish and wildlife. ■
