Subject: BREAKING NEWS Jones wins Democratic nomination for Alabama Senate; GOP race still uncalled

Former U.S. attorney Doug Jones has won the Democratic nomination in Alabama's special Senate election. Jones had 62 percent of the vote when the Associated Press called the race with 48 percent of precincts reporting.

The Republican primary is still uncalled, but former state Supreme Court Justice Roy Moore has 41 percent of the vote and Sen. Luther Strange has 31 percent with nearly half of precincts in. Rep. Mo Brooks is in third place with 20 percent.
