

Fig. 6.10. "Our Führer Adolf Hitler drinks no alcohol and does not smoke. . ."	200
Fig. 6.11. Tobacco ads banned in the Nazi era.	205
Fig. 6.12. Cover page from Reine Luft (May/June 1941), the leading antitobacco journal in the Nazi era.	210
Fig. 6.13. Hitler's April 5, 1941, telegram congratulating dignitaries assembled in Weimar for the First Scientific Conference on Tobacco Hazards Research.	211
Fig. 6.14. Karl Astel, president of Jena University and director of Jena's Institute for Tobacco Hazards Research.	212
Fig. 6.15. Tobacco as "an obstacle to racial policy."	220
Fig. 6.16. Graphic from Reine Luft equating smoking and drinking with capitalists, Jews, Indians, Africans, degenerate intellectuals, and loose women.	221
Fig. 6.17. "Tobacco has its victims by the neck; the Jew has his victims by the neck."	221
Fig. 6.18. A rain of "Tobacco Capital" is ruining German health and labor power.	223
Fig. 6.19. Antismoking activists lament the economic costs of smoking.	224
Fig. 6.20. Think of all the things you could buy, if you didn't smoke!	225
Fig. 6.21. "Germany's Cigarette Consumption: Numbers That Make You Think."	229
Fig. 6.22. In 1940-1941, Germans smoked 75 billion cigarettes.	230
Fig. 6.23. Ads for Trommler's "Storm Cigarettes."	236
Fig. 6.24. German cigarette consumption declined by more than half from 1940 to 1950.	244
Fig. 7.1. "Where will they draw the line?"	272

THE NAZI WAR ON CANCER