

IF the famous Leaning Tower of Pisa had been equipped with lead pipe, its settlement would not have caused one leak in the pipe line.

When Buildings Settle

WHEN buildings settle, pipe lines of metal other than lead are likely to be a great source of trouble. Pipes break and joints become sprung, resulting in great inconvenience and expense to the owner and untold trouble caused for the plumbing contractor.

Lead pipe is flexible enough to give when a building settles and these troubles are eliminated.

For the financial protection of yourself and your customer install lead pipe.
