Dear Dr. Kehoe:

We are now in the process of making our own glass from the basic ingredients. One of these is lead. We are very anxious to do everything possible to prevent lead poisoning, both in the batch room where the ingredients are mixed, and in the furnace room where the powder is melted. I would appreciate any suggestions you have as to the use of showers, clothing changes, respirators, and providing milk to these workers.

Very sincerely yours,

Roger E. Allen, M.D.
