Probation Granted In Attack on WAVE

An Oakland Airport mechanic, father of five, who has been in jail for seven months on the charges of an Alameda Naval Air Station WAVE that he beat and criminally assaulted her, was released today on three years probation.

Superior Judge James R. Agee granted probation to Dewey Hamlin, 27, of 7526 MacArthur Boulevard, after Hamlin pleaded guilty to the charges.

Hamlin was arrested last September 21 after the 22-year-old WAVE told authorities that he picked her up in an Oakland bar, and instead of taking her home, drove into the hills and attacked her. Later, he returned to the station.
