ington, for many years adviser to high school yearbook and literary publications, Linder said:

"She will be remembered by generations of Palo Alto youth, as well as by her colleagues, as a most unusually attractive lady of excellent taste in all things, a person of impelling and gracious dignity.

"Her special teaching interest was American Literature, a field which she not only knew thoroughly but understood in its most significant relation to our national heritage. ... Accepting change with her characteristic grace, she nevertheless lived the conviction that our national heritage is stronger in its continuities than in its change, and reflected this in her teaching.

"Her long years of effective service to the youth of our community fittingly demonstrated the age-old truth that both joy and meaning are possible in a plain life of devotion to one's work," he added.

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The urge to cool off in hot weather is aiding the comeback of an institution of grandfather's day — the hot-air furnace.

The warm-air heating industry is teaming up with the air-conditioning industry. Add in some assists from the all-but-total electrification of American homes, the rapid increase in the use of fuel oil and natural gas in the heating units, and the nation's home building boom.

Result: a 45 per cent increase in sales of the warm-air heating industry in the last five years. The American Institute of Management estimates wholesale totals last year reached 183 million dollars on 773,500 units sold.

P.A. Sea Scouts tell rescue tale

Members of Palo Alto Sea Scout Ship 40 have a rescue tale to tell as a result of their latest cruise.

During a three-day trip aboard their 40-foot power cruiser, they responded to a radiotelephone distress call on the San Joaquin river above Antioch. An old 30-foot motor launch being towed by a commercial fishing boat, was awash within inches of her gunwales.

Under the direction of Skipper George Downing, the Scouts took their barge pump aboard and bailed out the craft. Scout James Kennedy remained aboard and kept his foot over the largest of several holes in the stricken vessel as it was towed to Antioch.
