

be technical standards as a newspaper. SUBCOMMITTEE SPLIT The record showed signs of discord within the subcommittee. One member, Sen. Symington (D-Mo.), repeatedly defended Wechsler and it once told him: "I want to say that you have been the most forthright witness formerly interested in the Communist Party or a member of it that I have had before this committee."

The record showed Symington, McCarthy and Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) were the only three present on May 5 and McCarthy, Jackson and Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) on April 24. Wechsler, on McCarthy's orders to name every person he recalled to him, said he recalled only three: a Communist or a Young Communist League member in the 1930's handed over a list of names. The list was omitted from the transcript but only after a jizzling debate in which McCarthy reserved the right to make it public later. Symington served notice he would resist any such move. Wechsler argued that publication might hurt "innocent people" without serving any useful purpose. Wechsler filed copies of editorials and articles he has written, and articles in Communist newspapers denouncing his writings. Wechsler said he thought "the attempt of the Communists to run the United States from 1935 to 1945 and to capture control of the liberal movement."

PHONE GIRL REWARDED SALEM, Mass. (U.S.) A telephone operator, Rita Cronin, recently received a special delivery letter containing a hand-drawn check for $100. The message, "Thank you for saving my life," it was from the woman whose weak voice on the telephone one night said, "I'm very sick—get my doctor." Miss Cronin called a doctor and ambulance in time to save the victim of a serious heart attack.
