YOUR-STUCCO HOUSE NEED PAINT?... THEN REMEMBER—

There's more than One End to a PAINT BRUSH

Dutch Boy white-lead is sold by paint dealers everywhere.

THE way to make sure of satisfactory painting work on stucco is to look to both ends of the paint brush . . . to see that the skill of a master painter goes on the handle end and good paint—pure lead paint—on the bristle end.

For generations master painters have built reputations for the finest work with pure lead paint as a partner. It weatherproofs stucco completely, just as it does wood and other materials. This paint the painter mixes specially to suit the conditions of the job in hand, using Dutch Boy white-lead. You get a durable, non-peeling, non-scaling paint job—one that keeps out moisture and thus prevents the stucco from cracking. And as for color, you can have the exact tints and shades you prefer for this paint is also tilted to order.

Write us for detailed information about the use of pure lead paint on stucco. Also request our new booklet on painting, "The House We Live In."
