Plant & Corporate policy

We are committed to making only products that can be manufactured, transported, consumed and disposed of without harm to employees, consumers, or to the environment.

In 1903 we began practice of industrial medicine by providing medical care for workers.
First safety rules posted in Powder Mills in 1811

I accept plant safety as my responsibility and I hold each line supervisor responsible for the safety performance in his or her work area.

Safety is a job requirement anyone who cannot or will not work safely is an unsatisfactory employee. All employees must be willing to commit themselves to accept and follow established good safety practices.

Safety requires Responsibility and Accountability

Each employee is responsible for knowing and following the standards of safe performance of his/her job.

Safety Requires Discipline

Every person must develop self discipline to do every task carefully and within established good safety practices.

Perhaps it because of the kind of business we started with. Blackboard where safety was entirely to the life of the people involved. We had a very other business where the hazards were less serious but still present. Dupont has still maintained the same philosophy.

Mr. Vernon Bradley, plant manager here at Washington works. The Safety activities committee believed that this video program

Dupont is in the business of making products safely.
We are not in the business of hurting people or killing them.
We hurt ourselves while our workers support responsible (keep all Dept records reports)
has a corporate philosophy. (human resources management employee development employee incentive)

Over the years, a combination of management and individual responsibility has been the foundation for safe working performance by DuPont employees that is unmatched in industry. A vital element of this successful safety and occupational health program is a policy of informing employees of the hazards they may encounter in the workplace.

Dupont's goal continues to be the elimination of all occupational injuries and illnesses.

We believe that all injuries can be prevented and this is a realistic goal not just a theoretical objective.
