I think we should also carefully consider how to make the distinction between the SHS and API clear--this is not an API project.

Lorraine: Could you provide us with examples of previous articles from this publication that describe non-API consortium research projects?

I agree only if we, the consortium, have final and absolute control over what goes into the article. We review the draft and have editorial control over the content and wording. Otherwise, I feel that we should not agree to this.

API has requested that Lorraine do an article for the API newsletter that goes to API members. I am seeking your concurrence for this activity. If I have not heard back from you by cob Monday, April 5, I will assume that you have no objections.

Regards,
Patsy
