Attention: J. N. FitzGerald.

Gentlemen:

I have received the five papers from the University of Cincinnati dealing with the problem of lead poisoning which might arise from the use of industrial products where lead is used.

I fully agree with your viewpoint that lead poisoning from ethyl gas is of extremely minor importance and that the vast majority of cases reported are really nothing more or less than gasoline poisoning.

Thanking you, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

(Signed) J. W. Burns.

Associate Professor.
