Truck Driver Crushes Arm In Collision

Ralph L. Woodworth, 28, Salinas truck driver, yesterday suffered a crushed arm, which may necessitate amputation, in a head-on collision between his truck and another truck driven by A. D. Daggs, 21, Salinas, on Monterey highway near Morgan Hill. Woodworth told Highway Patrolman Robert J. Byers that steering gear on his truck jammed, sending the vehicle out of control. Woodworth was treated by a Morgan Hill physician and sent to a Santa Cruz county hospital. Daggs escaped injury.

need to heal their minds and spirits when the body has begun to mend."

This was the statement yesterday of Pvt. John M. Vallender, classification specialist at the WAC recruiting office, room 214 San Jose Postoffice building.

Vallender appealed for wide-scope enlistment in the WAC's for later assignment to the medical corps.

Five Areas Relieved Of Labor Shortage

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31. (AP)—Five areas including Eureka, Calif., were taken out of the acute labor shortage classification (group 1) by the war manpower commission today because the manpower situation has improved so that essential war production is no longer endangered.

Schuck's said today that the plant will observe Labor day, but that "those who work will be paid for overtime." One hundred women are badly needed for the night shift, for peaches, pears, cocktails and general cannery work. Twenty men are also needed.
