

exercise: I have noticed that women unconsciously fall heir to this kind of self-defense. If they are fat they are likely to feel that their friend, who has just lost 20 pounds, looks old in the face when often just the opposite is true and the friend actually looks years younger! If they are underweight they try to feel that they like themselves just as they are!

FACE DEFECTS

It is a good thing for feminine glamor that most women face their defects and try to do something about them. Otherwise there would not be so many attractive women in the world. The method of thought the friends are using is certainly self-deceiving but doesn't fool anybody else.

A few pounds this way or that, a few inches added or taken away, a new kind of hair styling or make-up or a little more knowledge of posture and clothes can make all the difference in the world in the way a woman looks, and when she turns her back on available present day information about such things, it seems too bad!

If you wish to have my suggestions about makeup, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 50 "What's Going On?" to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 509, Oakland 4.

MY WORD

By FRANK COLBY

Charleston, W.V.: In and around Charleston, we hear "any more" used in a sort of affirmative, present-tense way, thus: "The store carries nylons any more. Any more, it comes around 10 o'clock. New automobiles are being seen any more." My wife threatens to go home to mother when I suggest that she is wrong in so using "any more." Let us have a discussion, please.—A. G.

Answer: This misuse of "any more" is not uncommon in the Middle West, especially where many people are of German descent. Until the above letter came I did not know that the locution is also being heard in a Southern state.

Such constructions as, "The store has nylons any more," apparently results from confusing "any more" with "once more." These two idioms are the opposite in meaning. "Once more" expresses the idea
